PRISON TIPS BY KOWALSKI

"Make your stay a pleasant one."

1. When you're doing a long stretch, do what Kowalski does. Bribe the guards.
2. Or like a hotel commercial for a prison.
3. If you're an average, decent citizen, ignore this commercial. But we know some of you kids will go bad.

REN'S CLAYMATION NIGHTMARE

by Craig Bartlett

Morning: the alarm clock rings. Ren turns it off, sits up in bed, unaware that he's in a clay-animated universe. He gets out of bed and passes Stimpy on his way to the bathroom, still not noticing that they both are badly-modeled clay characters with huge clunky feet that barely lift off the floor. Ren reaches the bathroom mirror and is brushing his teeth when he notices his reflection -- his mouth full of toothpaste foam, he spits out the toothbrush and screams. Stimpy runs in the bathroom. "What's the matter, Ren?" Extreme close-up of Ren's tortured face, huge thumbprints pixillating around his furrowing brow. Little clay drops of sweat form on his nose. Ren speaks. "What's the matter?! Can't you see? We're claymation characters!!"

Cut to the cel universe: Ren sits bolt upright in his bed.

"Yaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaahhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhh!!!!!!!"

Then he claps his hand on his head and sighs with relief. "Oh, Stimpy, you won't believe the horrible nightmare I had." Smiling, Ren turns to look over on the other side of the bed, where a clay-animated Stimpy grins back at him. BLACK OUT.
